Strengths, Talents, and Interest Assessments

These strengths, talents, and interest assessments help in a variety of ways depending on each individual's situation. Overall, these assessments are highly valid and reliable and will assist individuals to:

- Gain self-awareness and a better understanding of their primary motivators.
- Explore their unique personality traits, interests, and values.
- Identify their strengths, talents, skills and areas of challenge.

For those in the career exploration phase, the assessments will assist in identifying interests, skills, and talents and demonstrate how these relate to various occupations and career paths.

For those who desire career development and growth, the assessments can identify opportunities to maximize existing strengths and areas of challenge to address that could hamper advancement opportunities.

For those who are re-entering the workforce after an absence, these assessments can provide insight to focus the job search and successfully navigate the workforce re-entry process.
